

Q7. Asparagus was originally introduced as an ornamental.

Asparagus is said to be native to southern Europe. It was brought to Japan by the Dutch during the Edo period, mainly for its ornamental leaves. After that, cultivation began in Hokkaido as food in the Taisho period.

